

XX. NATIONAL BANK NOTES

These were issued from July, 1929 to May, 1935, after which date National Bank Notes ceased to be issued. This discontinuance was brought about by the Treasury recall of certain United States bonds, thus making them unavailable as security for further issues of National Bank Notes.

Only 5, 10, 20, 50 and 100 Dollar notes were issued and all are now obsolete. The obligation is as follows, "National Currency secured by United States bonds deposited with the Treasurer of the United States of America... The (name of bank and city) will pay to the bearer on demand..... Dollars ... Redeemable in lawful money of the United States at United States Treasury or at the bank of issue."

Charter Numbers. A complete list of the years of issue of the Charter Numbers of the National Banks will be found on page 100.

The Valuations. The listings that follow show in what states or territories the various types of National Bank Notes were issued. At the same time the valuations indicate the relative rarity of a given note issued in one state as against the same note issued in another state. The values given are for the most common specimens of each type.

5 Dollar Notes

All issues are with the bust of Abraham Lincoln.

Notes issued by banks in small towns are usually scarcer than those of banks in large cities, since they probably issued fewer notes. (More detailed information on this series will be found in the introduction to large size National Bank Notes on page 99.)

The Appendix lists the number of notes known to exist for each National Bank.

There are two distinct types for each denomination of National Bank Notes. On Type One, which was issued from July, 1929 to May, 1933, the charter number appears twice in heavy black numerals on the face of each note. On Type Two, which was issued from May, 1933 to 1935, the charter number appears four times, the two additional appearances being printed in brown ink alongside of the twice appearing serial number. The illustrations for Design Nos. 204 are for Type One and Type II. Design Nos. 206 and 207 are Type One; Design Nos. 205 and 208 are Type Two.

All are series 1929 with the signatures of Jones and Woods and with a small brown seal. In addition, the notes bear two signatures of the issuing National Bank, those of its president and cashier, along with the signatures of the Register of the Treasury and the Treasurer of the United States.
